Film - "Blinded by the Light" (12a)

*"Blinded by the Light, review: Gurinder Chadha's ode to Springsteen is utterly joyous. The film offers not only a reminder of Springsteen's lyrical genius, but of how he's always served as a beacon for the disenfranchised." The Independent Javed is a Pakistani teenager who experiences racial and economic turmoil while living in Luton, England, in 1987. He writes poetry as a way to escape the intolerance of his hometown and the stubborn views of his traditional father. When a classmate introduces him to the music of Bruce Springsteen, Javed sees parallels between the singer's powerful lyrics and his own working-class environment. Springsteen's melodies soon inspire Javed to find his own voice and follow his dreams.

Documentary Film - "A Dog called Money" (15)

Award-winning war photographer and filmmaker Seamus Murphy explores the creative inspiration behind PJ Harvey's ninth studio album in A Dog Called Money, an arresting, kaleidoscopic documentary film essay charting their travels together in Afghanistan, Kosovo and the US. Inspired by the songs and stories they encounter on the road, Murphy and Harvey examine the many ways in which music unites communities in areas of conflict and deprivation. Throughout their travels, he collects footage and images, while she notes down snatches of the lyrics which will later form her album, The Hope Six Demolition Project. Back in London, Harvey inverts these ideas of documentation and scrutiny by inviting the public to observe the album's recording behind one-way glass during a 5-week

All visiting those fancy new coffee bistros, no doubt. All seems doomed for Flo until one cold windy day a strange old chap called Henry Moon blows through the doors of the café.
